ST. LOUIS (N. L.), 5; NEW YORK (N. L.), 2. New York's game was all awry yesterday, and the Cardinals made McGraw's pennant seekers knuckle under. One bad inning-the sixth—and it was all over. The St. Louis batters did things to Mcdinnity in this inning, and the injuries inflicted on New York's chances by the batting were greatly aggravated by a line hit getting away from Browne and yielding four bases when its intrinsic worth was only one base. There were two on bases at the time, but at least one run would have come in on the hit anyway. That one gave St. Louis enough to win, as things turned out, so Browne's fluke merely made matters worse. McGinnity did not show his customary fine edge of effectiveness. For four innings he was a power, but after that was unsteady ilis support was wabbly and insecure. In he was a power, but after that was unsteady. His support was wabbly and insecure. In brief the New Yorks fell much below their standard of play. In dealing with base stealing the Cardinals again played loosely, but they were equal to the occasion in other respects, and their game tightened up, once they were in the lead. It was a tame skirmish, Brain's clever second base play and several sharp plays by Devlin helping to enliven matters at intervals.

Mertes followed his single in the second inming with an equally healthy steal. He went to third on Dahlen's demise, Brain to Beckley. He took a long chance in trying for the plate on Gilbert's short fly to Smoot, but as the latter made a weak throw-in Mertes came through in safety.

Mcdann's single, Grady's fumble and poor throw of Mertes's bunt and a double steal gave the New Yorks their second run. Smoot the first St. Louis batter, in the fifth inning, walked, and Modinnity hit the next batter. Barelay, Burke forced Smoot at third. Brady sent a long fly to Mertes. Barelay hustled for third base on the catch, and on Gilbert's poor handling of Mertes return kept on and reached the plate.

A base on balls to Shay, hits by Shannon and Brain and Browne's failure to stop Smoot's air-splitting smash sent four Cardinals scampering over the plate in the sixth inning. The score:

ST. LOUIS (A. L.), 6; NEW YORK (A. L.), 1. ST. Louis, June 15.-The New Yorks were defeated by St. Louis this afternoon. Poor pitching lost the game. Powell had been slated to go into the box, but at the last moment Griffiths switched and sent in Hughes. His control was execrable and his speed that of a tortoise. The Browns scored two runs in the first off Hughes's wild pitching. The first man up walked and was sacrificed to second Then Jones bunted and Sugden rapped out a single to right, scoring Burkett, and Hughes filled the bases by landing a ball in Padden's slats Hill hit a third and Osteen had a double play in his hands, but Burkett, who was on the coacning line, shouted: "Throw to first, which he did, and another run was tallied.

In the third St. Louis scored another run. Hempnili batted out an infield hit and was sacrificed to second. Sugden rapped out a Texas leaguer to right, which Keeler ran in and caught close to the ground, throwing to Williams to catch Charley off second, but Dwyer decided that Willie picked the ball off the ground. From this till the eighth inning neither side scored. Thoney opened for the visitors and got a free pass. Hughes fanned and Keeler pulled a hit to right, sending the centre fielder to second. Then Willie started a double steal, which resulted in Thoney registering while Padden engaged in running Keeler down. This was the only tally scored by the visitors. The score:

SMALL FIELD FOR SUBURBAN SEVEN HORSES NAMED TO GO IN TO-DAY'S BIG HANDICAP.

Irish Lad Is the Favorite, but Hermis, The Picket and Proper Will Be Heavily Backed to Beat Him-Major Daingerfield a Possibility on a Heavy Track.

One of the smallest fields that has ever been named to run for the rich Suburban Handicap will face the barrier at Sheepshead Bay this afternoon. In the official list of entries sent out by the Coney Island Jockey Club last night seven herses were named, but there may be several added starters. In 1895, the year that Lazzarone won the Suburban, there were six starters, while in 1806, when Henry of Navarre triumphed, there were seven. Yet in to-day's big race the best thoroughbreds in the East, with one or two exceptions, will sport silk.

the favorite. Trainer Rogers has been pointing him carefully for the race, and in his work the famous son of Candlemas has displayed qualities that were lacking earlier in the season. He will pick up 127 pounds and will have Shaw in the saddle. In the Brooklyn this jockey was accused of throwing the race away by taking Irish Lad wide on the turns in an effort to keep Shaw was charged with permitting The Picket to steal up on the rail, when, with better

Hermis is pretty nearly at his best just now, and worked out the mile and a quarter in 2:09 1-5 on Tuesday, whereas Irish Lad's best work the Bay was 2:08% on Monday. Redferd will have the mount on Hermis, and he will probably attempt to make a runaway of it, in which case it is believed that Irish Lad will not decline the issue.

The Picket, with 124 pounds on his back and Helgerson in the saddle, will have a big following. Carroll Reid, who trains him. says that the colt can win with this impost. He has worked in 2:08%, according to the most reliable clockers, and will go to the barrier in even better shape than in the Brooklyn. Reid insists that The Picket had plenty eft in the Brooklyn, and that the colt is the best raceborse in training.

W. B. Jennings's Proper, with 110 pounds, is sure to have a world of support. The Prestonpans colt ran third in the Brookivn, after being knocked out of his stride a mo ment after leaving the post and later experiencing the roughest kind of a journey Lyne rode him in the big Gravesend handicap but Odom will have the mount to-day which means that the colt will be made to run to the limit of his endurence, especially when it comes down to a drive in the stretch. future books especially by his owner. to meet Jabez White there next November. Joe Gans, the lightweight champion of the world, is ready to take the Englishman on, but wants to be amply paid for his services. The other day a letter was received here from Matchmaker Bettinson, asking for a fit opponent for White. Jimmy Britt was suggested and would no doubt have accepted had he not been engaged to meet Young Corbett. According to the compact between them neither shall engage in a scrap prior to their own being decided. As it looks now Corbett and Britt may have it out some time in October. Should Jimmy win it is not likely that he would care to go abroad and face White the following month.

Gans is just now in fine form: in fact, those who are in a position to know, declare that he is possessed of more strength than when he defeated Frank Erne at Fort Erie a few years ago. That he has regained his old punch is evident, judging by the way he is stopping his rivals just now.

Gans would willingly face Britt or any of the topnotchers, but they seen to be afraid of him. Should dans and White be matched, the mill will create no end of interest in England. That it will be a big betting event is assured, for White is held in high esteem by the British sports. Gans says that he can fight at 133 pounds at ringside, but prefers to meet White at 133 pounds, weigh in at 2 o'clock on the afternoon of the encounter, which is the custom in England. Al Herford, his manager, adds that they will cover any amount on the side that White's backers will put up, but declares that the purse offered by the English club must be an enticing one. He also wants $700 for expenses, the sum the club offered to Terry McLiovern to meet Ben Jordan during the coronation ceremonies three years ago. to meet Jabez White there next November.
